Most men may find erectile dysfunction a concern. Maybe the desire is there, but you can't act emotionally or how your partner may feel when he/she needs to be with you, but you can't.

These issues can cause you to feel depressed or frustrated with yourself, leading to a self-confidence reduction. This will succeed in purchasing and taking some erectile dysfunction drugs to stop experiencing any of these feelings and regain your stamina and performance.

Sadly, these ED tablets you are taking have side effects. 1 in 30 men taking ED pills has side effects that damage their vision and cause more problems. A fifth of men who drink ED drugs still suffer migraines or, worse, a heart attack or stroke.

So, to sum up, these drugs are meant to try to help you with your ED issues, but they also kill your other body functions in the process. Not looking like a good win-win scenario, right?
